May the 4th be with you!

For this new edition of our Trend Reports, we kept it flexible so as to cover data and science based info, as well as concepts and ideas for relaxation around work. Plus, do read our take on future of work in the article below.

FOW data of the week

The latest study on best countries for remote work, shows 8 of the 10 spots being located on European soil. Germany is ranked on the 1st place, next is Denmark. European nations filled eight of the top 10 spots, as the U.S. was followed by Spain, Lithuania, Netherlands, Sweden, Estonia, Singapore, and France. More about the study here.

Emotive employers

The Future Laboratory, a strategic foresight consultancy, is calling organizations that go this extra mile “emotive employers.” The term refers to when an employer provides a range of progressive amenities that empower employees to bring their whole selves to work. Read more about it on our FOW infused blog.

What is actually the Retreat in a Work Retreat?

Everything you need for the relaxation and reconnection of your team is available in our Work Retreats. Every District comes with splendid natural pastimes, near towering mountains and thick forests. Discover more here.

The “3rd space”

While society still debates if the coming back to the office 5 days a week will happen, people find new working solutions. If you’re not at home, and you’re not in the office, then you must be somewhere else. Enter the concept of the “third” place, which is used to describe everything from coffee shops to banks, and co-working spaces.
